Explanatory note

This note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general effect.

These regulations revoke a regulation, regulation 9, that requires the name or trade name and the business address of the holder of a goods service licence to be displayed on vehicles that are used regularly under the authority of the licence. Since 1 August 2009, a licensee has been required to display a transport service licence card on the vehicles. The card shows the transport service licence number, the name of the licence holder, a unique identification number, and the type of licence. The display of information required by regulation 9 is, therefore, unnecessary.

The regulations come into force on 1 November 2009.
